

Chris DeMeo Bio

Chris is a partner in Seyfarth Shaw's corporate section focusing on health care regulatory compliance in the areas of fraud and abuse, patient information privacy, licensing and reimbursement. He represents hospitals, physician groups, post-acute providers, clinical laboratories and independent diagnostic facilities with respect to compliance counseling, internal and external investigations, business transactions and litigation.

Chris received his law degree from Baylor University School of Law. He is a past chair of the Houston Bar Association's Health Law Section and currently co-chair of the Houston Bar Association's committee to address homelessness and hunger. Chris has been recognized as a Texas Super Lawyer by Thompson Reuters since 2014 and as a leading health care lawyer in Texas by the Chambers group since 2015.